Dan had a tan can. Now in the tan can is a yam. A yam is a bad bet but not a fad. I had the yam in the tan can with a lad in a red van. We went to Ken's pad. We had pep and met a cad who had a lax leg. This cad had a pet with a bell on his mat. I will tell you, I did not like the cad's den nor his pet rat that had a bag of wax. We did not beg to pet the rat. We did not tag the rat. Nor did we wed the rat.

So then we had a yen to get a hen at Pat's. We went to Pat's, and he gave us a sack with a pad. I did yell at Pat to give the sack back and no mess. He did not. So we went to Ben and said to tap the pen if he gets jam from the man with the fat lad.

Well we went to sell the jam from the set and saw a pan with gas. We fell in a gap and bet a man with a tan that we would all get out of the mess. He said we were all wet and hags and sad saps. He did vex us. So we sent a fax to the man, and we did pen a jab. Go wag or let the sap set, we said. And I led a yell like a bell.
